Census Figures Prove a Disappointment to Bloomington.

Bleomington, Ill., Sept. 19.—Unofficial in-formation has reached Bloomington to the effect that the official census fixes the population of this city at 23,256, and that of McLean County at 65,532. Superintendent fiwigart has telegraphed that while he does not say this, these figures are certainly very nearly correct. Nearly every one had figured on E.000 as the population of Bloomington, and the average guess on the county was at least 70.00. The same source of information puts the population of Normal, mation puts the population of Normal, Bloomington's suburb, at 4,000. This also is lived up to, and the managers of the various roads will report to Mr. Harriot all contracts for grain shipments that they make. With this information at his disposal, Mr. Harriot will be able to cheek up the business of the various roads and will, when necessary, route the grain in order to keep intact the various percentages as a agreed to. Grain rates east of suffalo have recently been quite severely cut. The lake-and-rait season surred with wheat from Huffalo to New York on the basis of a cents per busilet; corn at 3% cents, and oats at 2 cents per busilet; corn at 3% cents and cats at 2 cents per busilet. These fixures are known to have been cut a cent of years are known to have been cut a cent times are known to have been cut at times are known to have been cut at times are known to have been cut a cent of the rate for oats has been cut at times are known to have been cut a cent of a small trient, if the Eric Canal may be called a competitor, and places the New York roads in a position where they do not have to consider the Philiadephia, Halimore and Virginia perits in naming their rates. It is understood that the Penneylvania road, which brings its grain from Eric on the lakes, will act in perfect harmony with the new pool.

As the active shipping season is now at hand and the new crop will be coming forward in gradually increasing volume, the new pool is naturally a matter of much importance to the New York grain trade, as much interest will be taken in Mr. Harriol's attitude in regard to the maintenance of rates 15, for instance, Baltimore and Virginia ports will be taken in Mr. Harriol's attitude in regard to the maintenance of rates 15, for instance, Baltimore and Virginia ports will be taken in Mr. Harriol's attitude in regard to the maintenance of rates 15, for instance, Baltimore and fived up to, and the managers of the va-riot's attitude in regard to the maintenance of rates 17, for instance, Baltimore and Virginia parts make severe cuts, the New York trade will undoubtedly look to Mr. Harriot to make corresponding concessions from his schedule figures. The fact that in six weeks or so lake navigation will be suspended for the season does not mean that the pool was formed for six weeks only. It means that the pool will virtually be operative from season to season, for the practice is for the grain to come from the West by lake and be severed at Buffalo, and then to be brought on to New York by rail as the export and the local demands require.

This is the third pool that has been formed by the railrends for the centrol of the lake-and-rell grain. The first was under the centrol of Edward Annan and lasted for possibly two years as a practical proposition. The second was in charge of a committee of trunk line managers, who appointed William H. Smith as executive officer. This went into operation in May, 183, and had a comparatively small amount of success. The current pool will, it is believed, prove permanently successful, for the reaprove permanently successful, for the rea-son that it has one executive head and he is clothed with absolute power to compel strict compliance by all the radireads. The pool has already gone into effect and notice of the complete restoration of rates will be officially promulgated in a day or two.

Plans of Syndicate Trying to Get Control of Cotton Belt. trol of Cotton Belt.

It is said to be the object of the syndinte which is endeavoring to obtain a controlling interest in the St. Louis-Southtrelling interest in the St. Louis-South-western to form a trunk line from Chicago to Texus and the Southwest. Since the Chi-cago and Eastern Illinois made direct con-nection with the Cotton Belt system at Gray's Point, Ill., the passenger traffic of the lines has increased 21 per cent and the freight business proportionately. If the syndicate should succeed in obtaining con-trol, it is said, to be the intention to re-move the Cotton Belt general offices from St. Louis.
